

AN UNSATISFACTORY DECISION

The sporting world will not be satisfied with the decision on the Corbett-Jackson fight.

No doubt a million people were watching to know the result, even people who take no special interest in pugilism, but still have an anxiety to know which man wins.

The declaration by the referee of "no contest" has caused a wave of disgust to surge over the earth from California to Australia.

Both men made one of the most remarkable fights in the record of the ring. The pace was cut out very hot from the beginning, first one man setting the speed and then the other.

Through all the terrible journey there was a splendid display of courage, science and endurance and the club saw one of the greatest battles ever waged within its walls.

Each man was in such superb physical condition, and showed the results of such good training that they were like two machines, perfect in every wheel and cog, and made of the best tempered metal.

They fought each other to a dead stand-still, and were unable to do any more punishing work until they took a little breathing spell, when the referee stepped in and declared "no contest," also stating that the fight was not satisfactory to the club.

It looks as if the club would be satisfied with nothing less than a shower of blood and a few ribs broken and one man knocked helpless.

The men had $10,000 at stake, and each was fighting his own way, deliberately, and with the caution which ought to guide him in such cases.

The fight should have been postponed and fought to a conclusion, or the principals allowed to finish it their own way.

The daily Report of San Francisco published a full account of the Jackson-Corbett fight on the afternoon before it happened.

In order to make a sure thing of having a correct account the enterprising paper published two accounts. In one Jackson won and in another Corbett.

But even with all these precautions the enterprising little paper was at fault, for neither man was whipped.

They were wrong on both guesses, and it is the opinion of the APPEAL that a sporting newspaper which cannot call the turn on a prize fight after two guesses had better wait until after the fight comes off and their chances of getting it correct would be materially increased.

The Queen of Serbia is having a hard time of it. She was recently dragged out of bed and forced to get out of the country. Some years ago she married a titled Russian who shortly after the honeymoon, brought a mistress into the house, and compelled the Queen to act as the chambermaid for the new favorite. When the Queen demurred, he imported more mistresses and extended the territory which his wife was expected to act as chambermaid. A woman who gets into a Royal family in Europe has no picnic.

It is stated Associate Justice Bradley, of the U. S. Supreme Court, who is well past the age of legal retirement, will retire sometime during the next eighteen months, and that the vacancy will be tendered to Senator Edmunds, who has already twice declined a seat upon the bench of our highest court, and whose acceptance would be doubtful now.

A prospector who visited White's ranch, Nye county, about the sixteenth of last month, says: "The fruit trees on his place are heavily loaded with fruit—apricots, the size of Walnuts and figs larger. The fig trees bear three crops a year."

The Supreme Court of Louisiana has refused a hearing into the lottery mandamus case.
